POETRY.

The Little Boy that Died.

Dr. Christians is said to be the author of the following beautiful poem, written on the occasion of the death of a son whom he greatly loved:

I am all alone in my chamber now,
And the midnight hour is near;
And the faggot's crack and the clock's dull tick
Are the only sound I hear;
And over my soul, in its solitude,
Sweet feelings of sadness glide,
For my heart and my eyes are full when I think
Of the little boy that died.

I went one night to my father's house—
Went home to the dear ones all—
And softly I opened the garden gate,
And softly the door of the hall,
My mother came out to meet her son—
He kissed me and then she sighed,
And her head fell on my neck, and she wept
For the little boy that died.

I shall miss him when the flowers come,
In the garden where he played;
I shall miss him more by the fireside,
When the flowers have all decayed,
I shall see his toy and his empty chair,
And the horse he used to ride;
And they will speak with a silent speech,
Of a little boy that died.

We shall go home to our Father's house—
To our Father's home in the skies,
Where the hope of our souls shall have no blight,
Our love no broken ties;

We shall cross the banks of the river of Peace,
And bathe in its blissful tide;

And one of the joys of our heaven shall be
The little boy that died.

MISCELLANEOUS.

LITTLE CHARLIE.

We pick up the following reproof to careless mothers from Fanny Fern. It is one of the most touching leaves that has dropped from her pen:

I am one of that persecuted class denominated "old maids." By going quietly about the world, taking care not to jostle my neighbors, or hit against any of their rough angles, I manage to be cheerful, contented and happy. In my multitudinous migrations, I have had some opportunity to study human nature. Lately I have become a temporary inmate of a crowded boarding house. My little room has already begun to look quite home-like. The cheerful sun has expanded the fragrant flowers I love so well to nurture; my canary thrills his satisfaction in a gayer song than ever, and my picture books and guitar drive "dull care away," and beguile's many a pleasant hour. And now, my heart has found a few objects of interest. I've noticed on the stair case, and in the hall and lobby, a lovely child, who seems wandering about at his own arbitrio, almost asleep; then loitering at the kitchen door watching the operations of the cook; then peeping into the half open door of the different apartments. As by a rule of the house, "no children permitted to eat at the table," it was some time before I could ascertain who claimed this little stray waif. One evening, attracted by the carol of my canary, he ventured to put his little curly head inside my door. He needed a little urging to enter, for he resented with a child's instinct his welcome in my face. An animated conversation soon ensued about birds, flowers and pictures—his large blue eyes growing bright, and his cheeks flushed with pleasure, as story followed story while he sat on my knee. At length I said to him: "Charlie won't mamma be anxious about you, if you stay so long?"

"Oh, no," said he, "Lizzie don't care."

"Who is Lizzie?"

"Why, my mamma! She don't care, if I'm only out of the way. Lizzie made this pretty dress," said he, holding up his pretty embroidered frock; "but Lizzie don't know any stories, and she says I'm a bore. What is a bore?" said the sweet child as he looked trusting in my face.

"Never mind, now," said I tearfully; "you may stay with me whenever you like, and we will be very good friends."

The dinner bell sounding, a gaily dressed young thing vociferated in a voice, anything but musical, "Charlie! Charlie!" When I apologized for keeping him, she said carelessly, as she rearranged her bracelets, "Oh, it don't signify, if you can have patience with him he's so tiresome with his questions—Keep him and welcome, when you like, but take my word for it, you'll repeat your bargain!" and she tripped gaily down to dinner. Poor little Charlie! Time is plenty to adjust all those little girl's singlets, time to embroider all those little gay dresses, time to linger until midnight over the last new novel, but for the soul that looked forth from those deep blue eyes, no time to sow the good seed—no time to watch lest the enemy should "sow tares."

From that time, Charlie and I were inseparable. The thoughtless mother, well content to pass her time devouring all sorts of trashy literature, or in idle gossip, which are drawing room companions. The young father, weary with business troubles, contenting himself with a quiet "good night," and closing the day by a visit to the theatre or concert room. Poor Charlie, meanwhile put to bed for safe keeping, would lie tossing restless, from side to side, "with nothing but his head," as she innocently said to me. What a joy to sit by his side and beguile the lonely hours! There I learned to understand the meaning of our Saviour's words, "for of such is the kingdom of Heaven." In his clear, silvery tones he would repeat after me, "Our Father," asking me the meaning of every petition, then he would say, "Why don't you tell Lizzie? Lizzie don't know any prayers!"

One night I sang him these lines:

Sweet fields beyond the swelling flood,
Stand dressed in living green."

he raised himself in bed, while the tears trembled on his long lashes, and said, "O sing that again, it seems as if I saw a beautiful picture!"

Then taking my guitar, I would sit by his bedside, and watch the blue eyes drop and grow heavy with slumber, as I sang to him.

And she whose duty, joy and pride it should have been to lead those little feet to him who hiddeh "little children come," was indolent, ly and contently bound in flowery letters of her own wearing, unmindful that an angel's destiny was entrusted to her careless keeping.

in the winter even scows ain't allowed to run.

"Squire, what are you going to do with me? I did get a little spring, I know I did, but I was thunderin' hard at work all day yesterday discharging freight from the scow, and I spoke I must have taken too much."

"Will you be careful to keep sober if I let you off this time?"

"Yes Sirree, Bob horse-fly—I will."

"Well Sir, you may go; now be careful."

"Squire, burst my galluses if you ain't a whole handful of trumps, and ten spots—high, low, jack and the game; if you'll come down to the boat I'll treat you to the best cabin a-fords, and I'll take care not to let you have enough to get you into such a scrape as I did—if you agree not to kiss the cook, for I've got a mortgage in that piece of calico myself."

"I'm afraid I shall not be able to accept your invitation."

"Well I'll take the will for the deed, so good day."

Mr. Sherman vanished.—New York Tribune.

A SUCCESSFUL TRICK.

A young and skillful disciple of Robert Houdin was some time ago travelling in the northern provinces of France, giving exhibitions in natural magic, in company with a young wag, now director of a printing establishment in Paris. In their wanderings they arrived at the town of R——, more noted for its manufactures than for the natural brilliancy of its inhabitants. Here the receipts of the magician were absolutely nothing, and despair reigned in the hearts of our two adventurers. What was to be done?

"By my faith," exclaimed the assistant magician, "it will never do to say that we did not make our expenses! I have it! Let me write a poster for one more entertainment; and if the attraction don't answer, call me no assistant for a high priest of diablerie!"

At the urgent request of the large and intelligent audiences of our former entertainment, we have consented to perform the astounding feat of making the Cathedral bell ring any hour indicated by any of the audience. To take place.

"There, how will that do?"

"But how, in heaven's name, are you to fulfill the promise?"

"Oh, never mind. Am I not a worthy pupil of a skillful master? Leave that to me."

Night came, and with it a large crowd of the curious. All went off well, and now came forth the feature of the evening. Any one was asked to name a number. "Four," came from the crowd.

Mr. Sherman stepped forward. The officer who arrested Mr. Sherman stated that he found him endeavoring to pull a cantas awning down from its place in Nassau street, i.e., exstirpate—so that he was a scoundrel belonging to his birth, because he had put a private mark upon it the week previous; the mark he said was a red spot where he had killed a bed bug by hitting it with an avil; believing Mr. Sherman to be mistaken he brought him in.

The Court—Mr. Sherman what have you got to say?

Mr. Sherman—I suspect that the less said the better: the soper here who brung me in is a purty decent feller, considering," though Hank Spencer, who us to be Captain of the Toe-nail Invincibles, has got a coat that takes the shine right out of his'n.

"Where are you from, Mr. Sherman?"

"I was born and raised in Port Bay, but have spent considerable time around Cruseo Lake."

The next day as they were starting in the cars, one of the city councillors came to them, and begged that they would explain the noise.

"It is magnetism, my friend," said the magician, with a grand flourish of his hand, and the magistrate departed, much edified, and perfectly satisfied.

"What is the name of wonder have you been doing?" exclaimed the puzzled principal to his laughing assistant, as soon as the doors were closed.

"Why, I gave the bell-ringer five francs to stay in the belfry and ring as many times as I placed candles in the window, and I think it succeeded pretty well. 'N'est ce pas?' replied the other, shaking the well-filled cash box."

The next day as they were starting in the cars, one of the city councillors came to them, and begged that they would explain the noise.

"It is magnetism, my friend," said the magician, with a grand flourish of his hand, and the magistrate departed, much edified, and perfectly satisfied.

ANEXATION OF CANADA.—Five years ago, Earl Grey issued an official despatch to Lord Elgin, ordering him to arrest for treason, all who were officious in leading public sentiment for the annexation of Canada to the United States. It had the effect to silence several "Liberalists" for the time, but the slumber of five years, has again been awakened. Annexation is revived and freely conversed about as a general topic—it is intimated, that soon a convention of the people will be called to agitate the subject more practically.—[Lockester Democrt.]

Do tell! We are sleepy for earlin, brother Jonathan, but we don't wish to be disturbed; please to let us snooze a little spell longer, it is refreshin' th' nervous system. We haint notion' to disturb us in this "kedenty" exp' Krion. Nothing yell and skrimmages when you do actilly give the furiners jess. The shouts too of yir fugitive slaves as they fling up thair heels and capes and yell for liberty and Queen Vic as they touch free soil; also makes us more watchful and wakeful than you'd think. You couldn't do nothin' with this Canada if you was annexed, you know we siat no account.

To be sure we tek the fust prizes at Paris, and our wheat goes 68 lbs to the bushel, but that ain't nothin' of course. Then our Canada is tall, a fall vegitable, and you'd find 'em awful stingers, even more so thon yir keen edged Frank Pierce. Beside the thistles, and the 40,000 fugitives, and the Indians, and the furrie folks there's a awful slew of Native Canadians, and their motto is "Canada for Canadians!" and they mean to die in that faith, so you can hust up equis Deum, you don't know beans.—YANKEE DOODLE.

Why is Buckingham Palace the cheapest building in the world? Because it was built for a sovereign.

The Best Advertising Medium in Canada.

THE COLONIST,

DAILY Bi-Weekly and Weekly, enjoys a circulation inferior to no other Newspaper in Canada, and steadily increasing at the rate of 500 subscribers per month, or 6,000 per annum, being four times as fast as any other Canadian Newspaper, and in a short time will issue

25,000 Copies per Week.

THE DAILY COLONIST is found on almost every gentleman's breakfast table in Toronto. The Bi-Weekly and Weekly Editions are read by all men throughout Upper Canada—the Clergy, the Merchant and the Farmer, as well as at the fireside of the Backwoodsman, thousands upon thousands who receive the News of the Week, or Weekly Colonist.

Another journal in Canada has so reasonable and same time so universal a circulation. The sale and retail Dealer, the Forwarder, the Provincial Man, the Artisan, and those seeking amusement, will find it to their interest to advertise in a newspaper which is certain to reach the highest as well as the humbler classes.

Every advertisement which appears in the "Colonist" passes through all the Editions, and is seen by thousands of readers!

AMUSEMENT.

Uncle Sam's Farm.

of all the military nations,
in the east of the world,
the British Empire nation is the greatest and the best.
We have room for all creation,
but our honor is unfurled;
and a general invitation
to the people of the world.
Then come along, come along make no delay,
Confusion & confusion, come from every way,
Our hosts they're broad enough, don't be alarmed,
For Uncle Sam is rich enough to buy us all a farm.

St. Lawrence marks our northern line,
As far as our waters flow,
And the Rio Grande our southern bound,
From the great Atlantic ocean;
Where the sun begins to dawn,
Leaps across the Rocky Mountains,
Far away to Oregon,
Chorus.—Then come along, &c.

While the south shall raise the cotton,
And the west the corn and pork,
The New England manufacturers shall do the finer work.

For the deep and flowing waterfalls
That course along our hills,
Are just the thing for washing sheep
And driving old saw mills.

Chorus.—Then come along, &c.

Our father's gave us liberty,
But little did they dream
The grand result that now along
This mighty age of steam.
For our mountains, lakes and rivers,
Are a blaze of fire,
And we send our news by lightning,
On the telegraphic wire.

Chorus.—Then come along, &c.

We're bound to beat the nations,
For our motto's "Ourselves,"
And we'll tell the foreign powers
That our people are well fed;
For the nations must remember,
That Uncle Sam is not a fool,
For people do the voting,
And the children go to school.

Chorus.—Then come along, &c.

The above is a first-rate song for the Know Nothing of the United States.

An Hibernian was reproved by an officer for going to whistle in the ranks, and while going on duty. Just as the officer spoke, one of his Russian hawks came whistling over the ravine at cock, his eye up, towards it, and quietly said: "There goes a boy on duty; and, by Jove, hear how he whistles!"

A gentleman by the name of Man, residing in a private madhouse, met one of its poor inmates, who had broken from his keeper.
